

Yes, We Brought a Trailer By Jim Weed

I have a buddy from the Atlanta Car Club who recently purchased a car on Bring A Trailer.

It seems that the popularity of BaT has been growing for quite some time. Early on, the cars offered seemed to be the more common, but interesting, fare.

Sports cars, trucks or American iron were the items found up for auction. The descriptions were good, and the photos helped to get a good feel for the quality, or lack thereof, of the auction vehicle at hand.

Ferrari was not often in the mix, but that has changed as BaT has become more popular. Often, there are Ferraris listed and some of them have been VERY unique.

The Ghia 212 Inter made for Argentina President Peron comes to mind. It proves the on-line auction platform can work as well for a Datsun pickup as it can for a million-dollar Ferrari.

The basic program of BaT is a low seller's fee to list your vehicle, extremely reasonable for the seller. The 7-day auction format is just $99.00 to list.

Now, before everybody rushes out to list their car there are some caveats. BaT determines the number of auctions and they also determine what cars they want to present. They get to control the mix.

That is not all bad, it keeps it interesting and fresh. You never know what will be there and with the short auction time it is always changing. Yes, it can be addicting.

There is a comment thread that allows prospective buyers and other experts (hopefully, experts) to ask questions of the seller and to make comments about the car.

I had a subscriber who would contact me if there was a Ferrari question that needed a comment. His post would always reference "I have it on good authority..." whenever an argument would break out.

The bidding process is straightforward and can be placed through your computer, laptop or phone. Notifications are provided when you have been outbid or when a comment has been posted.

To keep from being outbid near the end of the auction, time is extended by two minutes when a bid is placed. There is no possibility of losing the bid at the last second. It must survive the two-minute mark.

After the auction, the buyer pays a fee for the winning bid, a reasonable 5% is charged with a maximum of $5,000 to BaT.

Contact information is exchanged between the seller and buyer so arrangements can be made for payment and delivery or pickup.

The entire BaT program tries to keep simple and honest for both the buyer and seller.

Now, back to my buddy, Chris, and his purchase.

Chris is a car guy. Like most of us car guys he has his likes for cars that drive his passion. He doesn't own any Ferraris, but I like him anyway.

Chris is the driving force and owner of the Atlanta Car Club. I've said before, it's a club for those who don't golf. Store your car, gather for weekend drives, drink at the bar, watch racing or football on the big screens, all in the company of other like-minded, dyed-in-the-wool car guys.

So, Chris is looking for something different. Something cool, but also unusual. He has a GT40 and a Porsche (I don't know what kind. Are you surprised!), a couple of Mustangs; one old, one new, and wants something really vintage.

BaT has something that looks interesting and shouldn't break the bank. He placed a watch on the vehicle and read the comments. He's lurking, but not actively bidding.

As the auction winds down Chris is sitting at the bar with a bunch of encouraging car people. Yes, a couple of beers were involved, and the bid increment was only $250. What's another $250? Hanging out with an active phone, car guys, and beer; what could go wrong?

On Wednesday, Chris and I took a trailer to Savannah and picked up his latest acquisition, a 1933 MG J2 Midget.

No, it's not a Ferrari, but we did bring a trailer.

rosso maranello the register for cars from Maranello rosso maranello is one of the world's largest private databases for vehicles from Maranello which is operated by Michael Graf.

It is not associated with or sponsored by Ferrari SpA in Maranello and Modena or any of its subsidiaries. This has been his only private hobby for many years.

In his own words:

For more than 30 years I have been collecting all available information about the individual vehicles from Maranello. It all started with a few Ferrari models and the desire for more information about the original vehicles and their history.

Starting with my first books on Ferrari and car racing, I collected all the information contained therein and assigned it to the individual vehicles.

Valuable resources were the two volumes Ferrari Serial Numbers of Hilary A. Raab jr. as well as the magazine Cavallino and the issues of the Ferrari Market Letter.

Today my archive includes well over 5,000 books, magazines, sales brochures, auction catalogs and other publications on the subject of Ferrari. I have received additional information from current and former owners, dealers, workshops and restoration companies.

To mark the 50th anniversary of Ferrari in 1997, I published the Ferrari Register 1997 in a small edition with information on more than 26,000 vehicles and sold them worldwide.

Over the years, work on the register has continued and more than 137,000 chassis numbers have now been assigned to individual vehicles. That's more than 60% of all Ferrari vehicles ever built.

Listed are all production cars from Ferrari, Dino and ASA, all kinds of racing cars (F1, F2, GT, ...), prototypes and one-offs. And the work on the register continues.

The two publications offered now are absolutely unique on the worldwide Ferrari literary market.

It is a must for any Ferrari enthusiast and a valuable addition to all research related to Ferrari.

Ferrari Serial Numbers is the chronological listing of all Ferrari chassis numbers.

It contains where available, in addition to the model, the year built, the coachbuilder and the body, LHD/RHD and the painting and the interior for delivery. Also included are all identified Dino, ASA and racing cars.

Ferrari Serial Numbers consists of four-volumes with over 2,000 pages. It costs €950, including all shipping costs worldwide.

The Complete Register is the printed form of the full content of rosso maranello and contains general information about all models ever built by Ferrari (Auto Avio Costruzioni 815 to Ferrari Roma).

Sorted by models, all known chassis numbers are listed with respective information about the individual vehicle. In addition to the individual factory specifications, the optional equipment and the complete chassis number of the vehicle, the delivery data, the first owner, other owners, registration numbers, sales offers, auction results, repairs, restorations, repainting, conversions as well as accidents or scrapping are included.

This information is supplemented with information about race participations such as team, driver, race number and the result. A list of pictures of the vehicle in the literature completes the history of the individual vehicle.

The Complete Register consists of 13 volumes with over 7,500 pages. It costs €9,800 including all shipping costs worldwide.

Both publications are only available directly from the author. Worldwide shipping with UPS.

For more information: rossomaranello@gmx.de

As one who works within our own database every day, I appreciate how much work goes into the collection and archiving of Ferrari serial numbers.

The availability of this much information in one place makes having The Complete Register a good complement to one's library.

Whether buying or selling your Ferrari, knowing what information is available is a must.

Additionally, it is always fun to look up the history of any, or all, the Ferraris from any event where cars from Maranello gather.
